1. It is reported that 200 Stuttgart transmitters, each with eight channels, had been completed at SAG "Kabel", Radeberg (F39), by the end of December 1949.
  2. Two of these transmitters are mounted in each of the trucks sent to the factory for fitting. In addition, one FT3 and one GM apparatus are also mounted on the trucks which come from Verdau where box bodies are first built upon a Soviet three-axled chassis.
  3. The GM-Geräte were bought from the ASG for 14,000 DM (Ost) each, and plans were under consideration to begin to manufacture these also at the Radeberg plant.
  4. The aeriels are in the form of a truncated hollow pyramid about 150 cm tall, from base to apex, and about 110 cm square at the base. The cone is of wire mesh, with the wires about 12 mm apart and 1.5 mm in diameter.
  5. The FT3 sets, which are at present being manufactured by the Sachsenwerk at Radeberg for the Soviet Army, are being installed in radio trucks supplied by a firm in Glauchau. Basket antennas (Korb-Antennen) are to be fitted onto a small trailer for the trucks.
- It is reported that, since the shortage of keying relays has been overcome by the delivery of the order placed with Siemens, the production quota of 50 units by February 1950 will be met.
